Late nineteenth-century naturalist William J. Long invites us into the secret worlds of woodland animals in this, his second, fascinating book. Long's stories of the secret lives of woodland animals come from time he spent in the woods, observing the behaviors and characteristics of the wilderness inhabitants directly. His method? Sit quietly, wait (sometimes for hours), and the animals will come. This book, unlike his first, Ways of Wood Folk, seems to be directed at his critics who accused him of assigning human emotions and intentions to the animals he profiles in his writings; Wilderness Ways very deliberately tells the unvarnished truth about animal behaviors, both tender caring and vicious murder are illustrated herein. Wilderness Ways opens up the hidden world of its woodland subjects with beautiful imagery and descriptive prose which is accessible enough for a child to read while at the same time engaging for readers of all ages. Be transported into Long's hidden wilderness world. (Summary by Jill Engle)

Read by Kangaroo692, JenMitchell, Nathan Yoder, Pazappy and laurencetrask. Total running time: 03:43:42

This recording is in the public domain and may be reproduced, distributed, or modified without permission. For more information or to volunteer, visit librivox.org.

Cover picture by Charles Copeland (1901). Copyright expired in U.S., Canada, EU, and all countries with author's life +70 yrs laws. Cover design by (Kangaroo). This design is in the public domain.

Book Coordinator - Jill Engle
Meta Coordinator – Rapunzelina
Proof Listener – Phil Schempf